Any settlement proposals concerning my finances and investments must include the hidden and intentionally masked advertising revenues from every related television commercial campaign, especially multiyear Fortune 500 campaigns.

Specifically, the advertising agencies that developed the multi-year "Jack" commercials for the Jack-In-The-Box Company have reaped untold millions of dollars in production and royalty fees.

This food service company, once owned and controlled by the Ralston-Purina Company of St. Louis, Missouri, later based in San Diego along with McDonald's Corporation of suburban Chicago and its advertising agencies have withheld settlements and equitable distribution of creative royalties for many years, causing me undue and unnecessary years of hardship, loss of income and ridicule. Violations of free speech, and other civil rights have been trampled in order for each law enforcement jurisdiction to check into my story.

My objectives are to receive a fair distribution of profits, nothing more or less than the originating producers received for developing the campaigns. Nothing short of a total audit of broadcast television commercials and business advertising budgets will reveal the enormous amount of fraud involved with this multiyear scam.

Simon Marketing files a $1,000,000,000 lawsuit against McDonald's Corporation in a counterattack designed to thwart McDonald's efforts to sue Simon for the Monopoly Game scandal. Simon sez McDonald's has known for over ten years about the prearranged winners of supposedly fair marketing games, and has encouraged Simon to target specific individuals during the "broad marketing campaigns." Two senior McDonalds management staff are forced to resign in the scandal and corporate reorganization.

USDOJ building security staff acknowledges the television commercial links with nickname references to me upon my arrival to the Los Angeles Federal Building / US Courthouse. I am honored, and amused by this unorthodox recognition as I have a sense of humor. I also have patience for a just agreement, however intentional stalling, subversive actions, assaults, and felony attacks against me on a daily or weekly basis harden my resolve to receive my money without any further delays.

I would like to thank all of the people who have listened to me via email during past three years, and a special thanks to those who may have saved me from harm during an unpredictable time. A sincere appreciation goes out to those in law enforcement that really care about others by going the distance protecting me in challenging environments.

As you may have observed, I have provided reciprocal security and briefings for select cities, public and private facilities, and groups to the best of my ability.

Respectfully,

Robert Remington
